

New Horizons in the History of Education

ICHRE

International Centre for Historical Research in Education

June 4th 2015, room GO5, 15-23 Endsleigh Gardens

Welcome to a day for listening to historians sharing their recent work in the history of education. As education faces an uncertain future the role of historical studies in education assume ever greater significance.

We have a number of prominent figures in the history of education alongside newer researchers exploring novel themes and issues. Contributions include transnationalism, informal learning, youth culture, music education and school histories.

Email: ichre@ioe.ac.uk

Web: <http://ichre.ioe.ac.uk>

Twitter: @IOE_ICHRE

Institute of Education

10:30 Registration

Morning Session 11:00-13:30

Introduction- Alice Kirke and Steven Cowan

11:10-12:00 Keynote address

Professor Rebecca Rogers, Université Paris Descartes, 'Women Teachers, Girls' Education and Empire in International Exhibitions'

12:00-1:30 Research Presentations

Dr Marcella Sutcliffe, Visiting Fellow, UCL Institute of Education, 'The challenge of transnational education from the Risorgimento to Liberal Italy'

Katherina Grant, UCL Institute of Education, 'Pupil Experiences of Progressive Education at King Alfred School 1930 to 1960'

Dr Mark Freeman, Christan Francis, Kate Heptinstall and Rebecca Webster, UCL Institute of Education, 'History of Education in the BA Education Studies at UCL IOE'

Afternoon Session 14:10-16:30

14:10-15:00 Keynote address

Dr Sarah Mills, Loughborough University, 'Historical Geographies of Informal Education'

15:00-16:30 Research Presentations

Edward Whiffin, UCL Institute of Education, 'Micro-Nationalism: Public School histories and identity in the 20th Century'

Dr Pauline Adams, UCL Institute of Education, 'Changing perspectives: implications for secondary school music in Britain after the Second World War'

Dr Don Harrison, Visiting Fellow, UCL Institute of Education, 'Why there was 'no exact place' for international understanding in the shaping of England's National Curriculum'

Closing statement- Alice Kirke and Steven Cowan

Evening Session, 5.30 pm, Bedford Room, G37, Senate House, London

Dr Heather Ellis, Liverpool Hope University, 'The British Association, Science Education and the Training of Character, 1870-1914'